

- Intro: This is The Rich Dad Radio Show. The good news and bad news about money. Here's Robert Kiyosaki.
- Robert: Hello, It's Robert Kiyosaki, The Rich Dad Radio Show, the good news and bad news about money. And today we have a special guest, like we always do have special guests. He is a long time favorite of mine. Personally, it's the first time I've been face to face or Zoom to Zoom with him. And he has a lot of fans here on Rich Dad. And so it's really nice to have Gerald Celente here. He is the founder director of the Trends Research Institute and publisher of the weekly Trends Journal magazine, which I highly recommend everybody get. And the reason I love Gerald so much is, you don't have to worry where he's at. He will tell you, he doesn't sit on the fence. He will tell you exactly where he's at. He reads the trends. He tells you exactly where it's at, for him. So it's going to be an exciting show. And our discussion today will be inflation is real, or is it real? That's a big discussion I'm listening to all the time right now. Some people say it's real and some people say it's going to the deflation. So that's kind of a very important discussion. Any comments, Kim?
- Kim: Yeah. I'm so looking forward to talking with Gerald, because, usually we love to follow trends and trends tell you the story, trends tell you the future. And most trend people are quite soft-spoken and kind of just to give you the facts, but not Gerald. Gerald will tell it like it is and I love his point of view and I love his outspokenness and what we at The Rich Dad Radio Show, we want to just tell people where it's at. No holds barred. We just want to give them the facts, give them the truth as best we see it and our best our guests sees it. So Gerald, welcome to the show. I'm so excited.
- Gerald: Well, I'm honored to be on this show, I truly am. And I thank you all so much for what you've been doing all these years and how much you've been giving to the people. So thank you so, so much.
- Robert: So Gerald, give our audience who may not know your background, a quick overview and how long- you've been in this trends thing for a long time.
- Gerald: Yeah, well, my overview is out of graduate school I worked on political campaigns in Yonkers, New York for the Mayor, Angelo Martinelli. He became the longest running mayor of Yonkers. It's a city of like 300,000 people. And then I worked on district attorney and state senators campaigns. And then they sent me up to Albany. And at 26, I was the assistant to the secretary of the New York State Senate, that's the guy running the whole show. And I got to see firsthand what was going on. And it was the worst job I've ever had in my career. Watching grown men grovel to suck their way up to the top, without going into a lot of details. And I quit after one year and nobody could believe I quit. And I went on to design and instruct American politics and campaign technology at St. Johns University, how to run campaigns.

- Gerald: And then I became the chief government affairs specialist of the chemical industry, a big trade association of the chemical industry. And I was killing environmental legislation at 28 years old, back in the seventies. Staying at the Willard Hotel and putting my meetings on at the [Hay 00:03:17] Adams. And as I started to grow up. I became the number two guy running the organization. At 30, I have pictures of me and Ronald Reagan, I picked him up at the Chicago Hilton two days before he announced he was running against Gerald Ford in 1976, put on a brunch with him and the board of directors stayed in touch with Mike Deaver for years. And I'd been with presidents prime ministers in princes, so I got to see the other side. And what happened was, back in the late seventies, when the Iranian conflict started to heat up and Jimmy Carter came back from visiting the [Shah 00:03:55] in Rosalyn and they shot his wife and came back on new year's day and said that, "The Shah was the island of stability in the Middle East."
- Gerald: In the Bronx we used to have a saying, "Bullshit has its own sound." I knew this thing was real. People weren't following how Kermit Roosevelt, Theodore Roosevelt's great-grandson and the CIA and the MI6 of the UK overthrew the democratically elected governor Mosaddegh in 1953, because Mosaddegh had the nerve to nationalize the oil and say it didn't belong to Anglo, Iranian oil, better known today as BP, and standard oil, better known today as Exxon mobile. So they overthrew the government. They brought in the SAVAK. The secret police brought the [shine 00:04:47] , and the SAVAK, if you read about this, as it was going on over the years, they made the SS look good. So the revolution happened. I knew it was real. And again, that's when I became a political atheist. I look at things to the way they are not the way I want them to be.
- Gerald: So I started to play. I said, what are going to be the implications of this? So I started playing the gold and oil futures markets. And very few people were playing a back then. And I parlayed a $5,000 bet into almost three quarters of a million. And I quit my job and I started to grow up and looking at things differently, but I wouldn't know what I know if I wasn't on the other side. And so that's how I got started. And by the way, I'd had three quarters of a million. I lost most of it gambling, but I learned about it. And then I built from there. And that's how I started the Trends Research Institute in 1980.
- Robert: You've been at it a long time. Any comments Kim?
- Kim: Yeah. Well, so Gerald, with the trends I just want to jump into what's happening now. The economy, they say, "Oh, it's coming back. It's getting better. Everything's going to be good again." I don't think you think so.
- Gerald: Well, let's go back a year ago and let's go back to last August. Let's go back to last June. Listen to everybody. "Oh, it'll come back. It didn't come back." And now you're looking, what's going on, look at the commercial real estate sector. It's going down and it's going to die in so many places. New York is dead at night, dead. My buddies play music down in the City. You know what time they finished playing? 10:30 at night. When I was a young guy, we used to go out 1 in the morning. 10:30 at night, okay. Who are the companies that are demanding that their workers get vaccinated and come back to work. Oh, JP Morgan Chase, Morgan Stanley, Goldman Sachs. Oh, I wonder why? Oh, you mean because they're invested very heavily in commercial real estate and they also holding a lot of loans. You're looking at an office occupancy rate in the United States at best around 40%. You're looking at New York, maybe it's 24%. Now you have people, they don't want to go back to work. You think they want to commute an hour and a half on the L each way? And now I'm renting out seven stories if I'm in a business and I'm paying all that rent. And I say, listen, stay home, I only need three stories. Before this happened in New York City, from the west side of the village, west village up to 5th avenue, Madison Avenue. For rent in 2019. The commercial real estate sectors are going to crash in Boston, in Atlanta, in San Francisco, in Los Angeles, in big cities.

Gerald: This thing's going down big and hard. And now with the COVID war, with the Delta variant out there, people are freaked out. I see people walking down the streets. We had the hurricane came, pouring rain, with an umbrella, no one around them with masks on. So they're not going out. Look, what's going on in the hospitality sector, look, what's going on in the restaurant sector, look, what's going on in tourism and travel around the world. It's going down the toilet. It's not coming back, look what's going on. The facts are there. And they're scaring people more and more. And it's going to have a very negative implication on the global economy.

Robert: Okay. So now can I add one more twist in our discussion because you know Kim and I are heavily invested in real estate and we love real estate. We're doing very well at it because we could see this coming. It was, they say, the bird of death is the sky, when we see these cranes in the sky, you know it's going to die. I remember around 2008, just before 2008, there were cranes all over the skies of New York and there were huge condo projects and all this, I go, it's coming down. But the other thing he talked about was the Shah and the Shah was terrified of the Marxists and he got taken down. So you see Afghanistan, go down now, and you have COVID. So how has this in your mind as with the Trends Journal, how do you see this all playing. You got COVID, you've got commercial real estate, you got debt through the roof and then you have Afghanistan going down. I'm a Vietnam veteran and I remember '75 when the T 34 Russian tank rolled through the American embassy in Saigon. So here we are deja vu all over again. How does...

PART 1 OF 4 ENDS [00:10:04]

Robert: It's already gone. So here we are, deja vu all over again. How does this all fit together in your mind?

Gerald: There's a movie that they did about me. It's only 15 minutes. This woman, Doris Roberts, used to play the mother on this TV series, Everyone Loves Raymond, and the name of the movie is Zizi and Honeyboy and it's about one of my books. This is the book, Zizi and Honeyboy, and Zizi's the Neapolitan dialect ferrante and there's the clip. You could see it. You go to YouTube, put Zizi and Honeyboy movie clip and the clip is a 30 second clip of me on the phone talking to one of the guys in the studio and I say, you tell them I said we're going to lose the Afghan war. I got blackballed for the media. I used to be on Oprah, The Today Show, Good Morning, America. I used to be on everybody a lot. I used to be on CNN three times a month.

Gerald: USA Today used to run my top trends all the time. I used to be on when it was a big paper, I'd be in three days a week. It was almost embarrassing. I got blackballed. I said, if Alexander the great couldn't pull it off, if the Russians couldn't pull it off into the valley of death road [inaudible 00:11:13], if the Russians couldn't pull it off, we're going to lose this, and you know what George Bush said? You're either with us. So with the terrorists. There are four things is the way I see it, and again, the motto of the Trends Journal Magazine is think for yourself, you got the banksters running the show. That's one club. There was this guy they say, Jesus Christ, he drove the money changers out of the temple, made a whip, came violent on the cross three days later.

Gerald: The drug dealers that people call big pharma and the military industrial complex that Dwight D. Eisenhower five star general, Supreme Commander of the allied forces, two term president warns in his January 17th, 1961 farewell address that the military industrial complex is robbing the nation of the genius scientists, the labors in the future of the children, and big tech. So putting the whole story together, the bigs have taken over everything. My parents' generation and my grandparents, may they rest in peace, America was the land of opportunity. No longer. Hey, they're too big to fail. You're just a piece of garbage. You're not an essential business.

Gerald: Hey, but Walmart says. It's one after another. You have no right to say anything without my approval. I'm big tech. There was this thing called the declaration of independence and they talked about life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Liberty, you have none. I'm the governor. I'm the mayor. I'll tell you what to do. Here's my mandate. Happiness, they never talk about that word anymore. Everybody's so uptight. So where's America going? It's going down. When the virus broke out, our magazine covered, broke out on Lunar New Year, 2020, Chinese Lunar New Year, the year of the rat. Our cover was Coronavirus, 106 dead in China.

Gerald: Our next line was 1.4 billion still alive. What are you telling me this for? I'll tell you why. Because they couldn't stop the Hong Kong protests. I used to be on Hong Kong radio in 2019 continually on TV and I'm talking to the guys between breaks. We're going to keep fighting Mr. Celente. They're not going to stop us. 7.5 million people, 7.5 million people in Hong Kong, a million were taking to the streets. You can't get a million people in America out of 332 million to do anything. What happened? The virus broke out, security enacted, protests are over, China in charge, and the world became Chinese.

Robert: Amen. So we need to take a break, but when we come back, we'll have more. We're talking with Gerald Celente. What's going on in the world. Gerald Celente is a founding director of the Trends Research Institute and he's also has several books, Trend Tracking and Trends 2000, and as they say in the world of investing, the trend is your friend.

Kim: And I just want to add too, when we come back, Gerald, I want, you speak out a lot and you're doing a lot to wake people up. We're doing our best as well. So when we come back too, I want to talk about what can somebody do and is there something people can do to start turning this thing around? That's what I'd like to talk about when we come back.

Robert: When we come back. We're with Gerald Celente. He's been a friend. I mean, I've followed Gerald for years because as an investor, the trend is your friend. We'll be right back. Welcome back. Robert Kiyosaki, The Rich Dad Radio Show, the good news and bad news about money. Today, we have a very special guest. He has a lot of admirers here at the Rich Dad company. I've been a follower of his for years is Gerald Celente. He's a founding director of the Trends Research Institute and publisher of the weekly Trends Journal. I mean, I want you to show a copy of it, Gerald because it's always an interesting piece of work here.

Robert: And you can listen to the Rich Dad radio anytime, anywhere on iTunes or Android and YouTube. And please leave a comment whenever you wish all of our programs are archived at Rich Dad radio. We archive them because we don't sell anything. We're basically an information, education type of company and the reason we archive The Rich Dad Radio Show is if you listened this program again, you'll learn twice as much because repetition is how we learn, but more importantly, if you have friends, family, or business associates listen to this and discuss it because then your retention and your IQ and your view of the world will increase. So again, it's Gerald Celente. Any comments, Kim, before we bring Gerald back on?

Kim: No, I'm excited to continue talking with him and I just want to ask Gerald, it's right now, small businesses are in dire straits, middle-class is getting wiped out. Is there something... Where do we go from here? Can this be somehow turned around? What can people do to counteract all of the loss of our freedoms, the loss of our liberties, all the mandates and the restrictions, and I mean, Robert and I used to travel all the world. We'd be on planes all the time internationally. We did trips every month. I haven't been international for a year and a half now. So is there anything people can do or what should we be doing in order to turn this around?

Gerald: The first thing I really believe is that you have to get in the best shape you can physically, emotionally and spiritually, and I mean that with all my heart. The first book I worked on back in 1986 when people weren't even talking about this stuff was Natural Healing. It was a book, Dr. Jack Soltanoff, and it's changed my life. They don't mention a word, the prostitute media or the politicians about you want to beat the COVID, get in good health. Who's dying from it? Who were the most... 2.6 pre-existing comorbidities, type two diabetics, obesity, respiratory elements. These are facts, CDC facts. 42% of Americans are obese. 70% are overweight.

Gerald: So to get into the fighting shape, you have to get into the best shape you can. That's the beginning. Number two, it does not take a majority to prevail, but rather an irate tireless minority keen on setting brush fires of freedom in the minds of men said Samuel Adams. When the American Revolution happened, we're only looking at about what, three to 5% of the people that supported it. At the height of it, less than 50%. We have to unite on the one umbrella as I see it. I don't know how to do it. One of the concepts I came up with and it's done now is I started a church, the universal church of freedom, peace and justice because of the power of what a church could do, and this is any religion you believe in if your God believes in freedom, peace, and justice.

Gerald: I don't know if that's the answer, but I do know this, that we have to unite under one umbrella and there's never been a better time than this, but it's not happening in America. Look at the protests going on in France, going on seven weeks. On average, almost a half a million people if you look at the other data other than the main stream, and what do you have going on in America? Very small protest. I had rallies up here in Kingston, that Judge Napolitano with Ned Zang. He was great. They came up. I'm doing what I can, but we have to unite. Again, I've been there on the other side in the political world, and without being disrespectful and I don't want to use the proper language, but again, as a guy from the Bronx and also, I used to teach close combat for many years, when you call these politicians out man to man, person to person-

PART 2 OF 4 ENDS [00:20:04]

Gerald: ... man to man, person to person, they don't know whether to piss or shit. They fold like that. They're only tough when they have their little boys and girls around them, their guards and security. If the people unite and say, "I had enough of your crap. We're not taking it anymore. You are a public servant. You do what we do. You will not mandate us. This is against the constitution. It is against the Bill of Rights." If we did that in force, we would win, and the best example I could give is the bringing down of the Berlin Wall. How did it come down? People came to the wall, they didn't leave. More people came, they didn't leave. More came, they didn't leave. More came, they didn't leave. More came, they didn't leave and the wall came down. All of a sudden, these tough guys in their military drag weren't shooting at the people anymore because they were outnumbered 80,000 to one. So, that's the way I see to win it. Is we have to unite and we can't stop. We cannot stop.

Robert: Amen, amen. So look, we're getting short on time. We're going to talk about inflation. Like I said, some people say it's going up and some people's say is coming down. So what is your point of view of that, Gerald?

- Gerald: If prices come down, inflation is still going to go up because they're de-valuing all the currencies. Look what's going on with the Euro now, it's collapsing again. Oh, the European zone is doing better. I see inflation continuing to go up because I call it dragflation. The economy's going to go down, currencies are going to go down, but inflation is going to go up because it's going to cost you more to buy things. Just like you're living in Venezuela and that's what's going on everywhere. They cannot raise interest rates without destroying the economy. We heard that fed guy Bullard come out last week saying, "Oh, they're going to be raising interest rates by March of 2022." Oh, you got the exact date, huh? Yeah they raise interest rates, what happens to that $30 trillion worth of debt? Oh, you have to pay more on that, huh?
- Gerald: What happens to all that cheap money that you've been pumping into the markets to artificially prop them up? The real estate markets to artificially prop them up? What's going to happen? What's going to happen when you got to pump more money in to stop everything from going down because it's going to go down and you raised interest rates? I thought they were going to raise interest rates. I don't see them doing that because of what it's going to cost to service the debt and what it will do to crash the markets. As you well know, look at the merger and acquisition activity that's going on. Look at everybody buying up everything with all this cheap money. And then how are they going to pay back their debt especially when interest rates go up? So I don't see interest rates going up and I see inflation continuing to rise.
- Robert: So what trend do you see tracking here? Because I mean, I agree with the facts and what's happening here, but it's going to come to an end. What does the end look-
- Gerald: They make them crap. They didn't teach me in economics 101 about quantitative easing and zero and negative interest rate policy. They make this stuff up. They're psychopaths, sociopaths, pathological liars. What new scheme will they come up? That's the answer. Will they be able to come up with a new scheme? And by the way, you've mentioned it before, Janet, Yellen, here we have that head of the Bankster Gang as our treasury secretary.
- Robert: I agree.
- Gerald: Are you kidding me? That is how fraudulent this whole thing is. That we have the Bankster Gang is our treasury. So yes, it has to collapse and I'm still bullish on gold and silver. And I believe there's still a market for cryptocurrencies until they crack down and stop it because they're going to all go digital like they're doing in China already with the Yuan, the tests keep going out. So they know every penny you spent, where you spent it, how you spent it, what you spent it on so they could get the money in the name of taxes.
- Robert: Well, the fed [inaudible 00:24:33] surveillance capitalism. They're like, keep track of everything you do. I mean, my friend he's, I think he has Siri or Alexa in his house. I'm going, they're listening to everything you're saying. Oh, I don't care. Anyway, any comments, Kim?

Kim: Gerald, when you talk about what's the next scheme that they're going to come up with, because when we're talking to other economists, they're like, "Well, if you go along these paths and," but they can just change the rules and they can just keep printing money. How long can they keep printing money, and how long can they keep propping things up until it does collapse?

Gerald: Again, it should collapse already. I mean, the equity markets went up during the lockdowns. Here's my greatest fear. When all else fails, they take you to war. There was this guy by the name of George W. Bush, a little daddy's boy, a little nothing of a clown that became president. And that's all these guys are. Little Trudeau up there, daddy's boy in Canada. The clown we had in New York over there, Cuomo, daddy's boy. George Carlin used to say, "It's one big club and you ain't in it." Go back to 2000. And again, we forecasted in entrench journal in October, 1999, the .com bust. The .com bust happened in March of 2000. We were in a deep recession going into 2001 when Bush is in office. Remember the hanging chads in Florida? Oh yeah.

Gerald: Anyway, his popularity rating's going down the toilet. All of a sudden 9/11, the Afghan war, which 88% of Americans supported, Bush's popularity rating goes up, and a whole new scheme began. You, Robert, you were talking about all those cranes in New York City in 2007 and 2008. And by the way, those cranes are still up there now. They're still building away because these projects were underway before this happened. So when all else fails, they take you to war. These are psychopaths, sociopaths, pathological liars, that as Dwight D. Eisenhower said, "Anyone that seeks the office of president is either an egomaniac or crazy." You can look that quote up.

Robert: So before we end, I want to go back to something you said, so what happened was, I writing a book called the Infinite Return and then in September 17th, 2019, the repo market blew up and then COVID appeared. And then you're saying that COVID appeared also to quell the riots in Hong Kong. Is that how you're saying it, or?

Gerald: yep.

Robert: I flew for the Marine Corps, we were taught ABC, atomic, biological, chemical warfare.

Gerald: There you go.

Robert: So was COVID B, biological warfare?

Gerald: Yes. Look at the power trip that these people are on, that they've taken control of. I mean, look, they locked down Australia, 25 million people. How many deaths? Under a thousand. Over 17 months, 86 people died this year out of 25 million. What are you locking it down for? They're power trips and they're working for big, the vaccination rates are only around 20%. Same thing with New Zealand, under 20%. New Zealand only had a handful of deaths.

Kim: But they're putting the narrative out that it's 50%.

Gerald: Of what?

Kim: The media's saying 50% of people are vaccinated.

Gerald: Oh, no. Not in Australia or a New Zealand. [crosstalk 00:28:30].

Robert: So Gerald, are you saying, I haven't heard this part, I was watching those Hong Kong riots, Hong Kong riots, Hong Kong riots. But you're saying, was that part of the reason that COVID appeared?

Gerald: I believe so. They could not stop them. They could not. I wrote about it every week. Again, I'm on Hong Kong TV. The people would not stop it, it stopped like that. Oh, by the way, one of our top trends for 2021, because we do them in December before this happened in 2020, was new world disorder. There were protests going on in South Africa, Lebanon, France, Algeria, Colombia, Chile, Bolivia, Peru, India, all over the world. Poverty, lack of basic living standards, violence, government corruption, and crime. They couldn't stop these every week. Boom, COVID comes, no more protests, it's over.

Robert: So your suspicion is it's related to keeping civil unrest down?

Gerald: No, it's to keep the maniacs in charge that are robbing the people of their rights in charge. And they suck up and bow down to the people that pay them off that morons and imbeciles called campaign contributions. The United States and New Zealand are the only two countries that allow drug ads on TV. New Zealand has, the death rate is next to nothing. And now they're locking it-

PART 3 OF 4 ENDS [00:30:04]

Gerald: Death rate is next to nothing. And now they're locking it down. They work for the drug dealers. Again, people call it big pharma. Look at how the FDA just allegedly approved the virus drug. Who was the head of the FDA under the Trump administration? Oh, a guy by the name of Scott Gottlieb. Hey, where's Scotty now? Oh, he's on the board of directors of Pfizer. What am I? Six years old. Who the hell are you talking to? You've got the guy that's running the FDA on the board of directors of Pfizer. Grow up. It's not a revolving door. It's one big club, as George Collins said, and you ain't in it.

- Robert: So Gerald, with that said, could you give a commercial message, a plug up out your Trends Journal? What it costs and how often it comes out? And I think it's one of the most important subscriptions a person can take right now.
- Gerald: Well thank you. We give our heart and soul into it. Last week it was a hundred, this week, 162 pages. What in the world is going on? What it means. What's next, geopolitical, economic, this high-tech science on and on for the grand total of a $2 a week. It's $129 a year. And again, I'm not saying it because it's my magazine. If anybody could show me anything that comes close to it, show me. But if you want to prepare and prevail and prosper in the times ahead, that's what the magazine is all about, trendsjournal.com. We give our heart and soul to make it the best it can be.
- Robert: Yeah. And your website also is trendsresearch.com. So I mean any way you can, ladies and gentlemen, please listen to Gerald Celente. At least you have a glimpse as to what's coming down the road before it runs over you. Anyway, Gerald, thank you very much. Any final words, Kim?
- Kim: Thank you, Gerald.
- Gerald: Thank you. I'm honored to be on your show. Thank you so much. I admire you both so much. Thank you.
- Robert: Thank you.
- Kim: Thank you, Gerald. I appreciate it. I like your points about you've got to get in shape. You've got to get physical shape, emotional shape, spiritual shape, because there is definitely a fight coming in. I just, I thank you, Gerald, for keeping that fight going and we're going to do our best as well.
- Robert: Thank you. So when we come back, we've got a final wrap up with our producer, Sarah. So Gerald, thank you very much. Keep up the fight, man. Keep up the fight.
- Robert: Welcome back. Robert Kiyosaki, the Rich Dad Radio Show, the good news and bad news about money. I'm very happy to have Gerald Celente on. And I've followed him for years and years and years. His Trends Journal is like the Bible. Just remember the trend is your friend. And as he said, when we were off air, he says he's very sad. I'm very sad. Kim's very sad. At the same time, we can fight back. And we fight back with knowledge and information because this is not a time to just rollover. So you can listen to this program anytime, anywhere on iTunes, Android and YouTube. And just leave us a comment and all of our programs are archived at richdaddradio.com. We archive them so you can listen to us again so you can pick up more. But more importantly, share this with friends, family, and business associates, and discuss this. These are very, very uncertain times. And so the more you can see the future with the trends, it's a very important time to get educated. Any comments, Kim?

- Kim: Yeah. One of the things that Gerald said, that we both embrace, is to think for yourself. I can't understand why people are just blindly going along, not questioning, just following all these mandates and not questioning, not wondering why and not connecting the dots. How come countries are locked down with very few deaths? Well look at the statistics. Look at the trends. Get the Trends Journal. Go to trendsjournal.com, Gerald's newsletter, because there's so many facts out there and people are running on emotion and opinions, but not facts. So I love that, think for yourself and get the facts.
- Robert: Yeah. And we're not saying to agree with Gerald, but at least he's looking into the future. And I think we should all do that. Look into the future. The trend is your friend, but it could also be the truck that runs you over if you're not watching. So Sarah, what's your point of view on all this?
- Sara: I'm just... We're talking about so many people are not fighting back, but I have to say, I feel a little rumble happening underneath the ground or something. I feel like the more people like Gerald and us that speak out against what's really happening and try to educate people, I do feel some kind of vibration happening, that maybe more people will wake up and that's all I'm hopeful for. I'm glad we brought up Australia during the show. It's unbelievable what they're doing in Australia. And the worst part is Australia's citizens are not armed, so they have no way of fighting back, should it take a turn for the worse. So it's a very sad situation, but I'm just hoping shows like this and people start waking up.
- Robert: And so Kim, you're getting pretty political because last night you were at a Kari Lake's event. What do you sense is... I mean, because we've never really been political.
- Kim: Never. I've never been political. And now it's gotten to a point that you have to do something. And as a gentlemen said, that we were watching the other day, he said, "Don't wait until next month. Don't wait until next month to do something. Do something now, because next month may be too late." So we've got a strong, strong governor candidate here who is fighting hard. She's fighting against the border crisis. She's fighting against all these mandates. She's fighting for freedoms and liberties and she's outspoken and she's very savvy. And so I'm supporting her big time any way I can. So we've got to get together. Last night, just about 20 of us talking about what we can do, how we can move forward because I'll go out fighting. As Gerald said, it's breaking his heart. It's breaking my heart too. And seeing what's happening to this country and to the world.
- Robert: Right. I think that her name is Kari Lake, K-A-R-I L-A-K-E. She caught my attention when... She's a newscaster. She's a very famous newscaster. And when they try to put words in her mouth, she quit. And all of a sudden I went, "That's my kind of person."
- Kim: She was 27 years as a news anchor in Arizona. And she said, "They want me to give misinformation. They don't want me to fact check anything. They want me to basically lie to the American people and I'm not going to do that." And she quit after 27 years. And then she got very vocal.

Robert: Yeah. And so, Kim backs her up. I was at another campaign thing last night. Again, we're not political, but we're getting political. Doug Ducey is our governor. He's a good friend of ours from... He was Cold Stone Creamery and all that, the franchise. And he says, "Why don't you get political?" I said, "Because I don't care." But now we're getting political. So last night I had drinks with an attorney who was running for attorney general. And so we're working on a campaign slogan for him because he wants money. I said, "When you put what I think needs to be put onto paper, maybe I'll give you money." Because I'm not going to just give money to people who are just going to jack their jaws and spend money and have champagne, all that stuff they do. He's come up with a campaign slogan that says, "As attorney general, I will protect you from our government." I said, "That'll get attention," because if you don't make bold statements like that, nobody listens to you. So anyway, final words, Sara?

Sara: Thank you for a great show. Thank you, Gerald Celente, for a great show. And he said he stands for freedom, peace and justice. And I think that's something we can stand behind. So just appreciated the show.

Robert: All right. Thank you for listening to the Rich Dad Radio Show and we'll text you on the block next time. Bye.
